

A MURDEROUS MOTHER.

A HIGH-TONE DERNATION IN BUFFALO SOCIETY.

Mrs. Cottier, the wife of a Wealthy Citizen, Dollars Heretofore for the Murder of Her Child—The Disposition to Widen a Mother-in-Law Drove a Young Woman, Etc., Etc.

BUFFALO, February 26.—Interest is unabated in the extraordinary case of Mrs. Cottier, who, on Friday night, surrendered to the superintendent of police accusing herself of having killed her baby with chloroform, weighted it with an ax-head, and thrown it into the Niagara river. The woman is insane according to some physicians, and perfectly sane according to others. She is young, beautiful, accomplished, and has been brought up in refined circles. Her father, Alvan Church, is a banker and a prominent man here. Her husband, Alonzo Cottier, is a member of one of the earliest families in the city. They were married in Chicago shortly after Mrs. Cottier left boarding school. She was hearty, robust and full of life. Cottier is the only son of his widowed mother, and is said to have been kept wrapped in cotton wool all the time. He is a frail thing, and was only allowed to marry on condition of living under his mother's roof and watching her. It is said that so fearful was his mother for his existence that for months after marriage the young pair were obliged to sleep in a room adjoining hers, and with the door open, lest she might befall the delicate pet. Lizzie Cottier was fond of society and the mother-in-law was not. She was forbidden to see her old school friends, and her life was made wretched by the narrowest restrictions. After her husband's death, it is said, in his mother's hands. She ruled the household. In the end, it is averred, the house became a sort of prison for the girl, who was not allowed to go out without her husband, who was at work all day, and an insurance office, while his mother would not trust him out after dark. Under the pressure her mind began to weaken, as entries in her diary show. One paragraph, relating to the mother-in-law, reads: "Why has the man raised her hand against me?" Shortly after this was written, Mrs. Cottier went to Chautauque, and on returning had a row with the old woman. She went back to Chautauque to meet a friend, and was suddenly missed. Her hat and some other clothing were found in a boat and she was given up as drowned. Five weeks later she was found by a detective in Boston. When she returned, she demanded a home of her own. It was refused. After the birth of the child her troubles redoubled, it is said, owing to the antics of her mother-in-law, who interfered in everything, even to the dressing of the child. The mother-in-law tried to get the child away from her. They had Dr. Thomas F. Roca, dean of the faculty here, treat her for mental disorder, and it is alleged, tried to get a certificate from him that she was insane, but he would not issue it. She was, however, believed her mentally sound, though dependent and distressed. Persecution in the end did the work, and the poor young mother, harassed almost to death, went mad in earnest. She states in the most specific terms that for her husband's sake, she would separate her from her baby. She gave it chloroform, knowing that would insure a painless death. Then she wrapped the body in a bundle, after it had been dead eleven hours and commenced to discard, and went over to the Canadian side, where she bought an ax. With this she weighted the bundle, and taking the ferry steamer back to Buffalo dropped the little corpse overboard. The current at this point is extremely rapid. Her story is not generally believed by her friends. Dr. Roca, however, believes the baby is alive, and says that Mrs. Cottier has hidden the baby away somewhere, under the impression that she can get it again without any restrictions from her husband's people.

UNITED TO A TATTOOED MAN.

Marriage of the Bearded Woman—Albion, Living Skeleton, and Bearded Woman Attending a Wedding. From the Philadelphia Times. R. R. Moffitt, a tattooed man, and Miss Leo Hernandez, a tattooed, bearded lady, were married in Frankford recently, and a large number of noted "freaks" witnessed the ceremony. The bride has a glossy black beard three inches long, and the groom is as handsome a pig-tailed fellow as is to be seen in America. Miss Leo is twenty-six years old, and her husband has passed forty. His first wife was the "Russian giantess," a 500 pound Venus, who died of dyspepsia in Pittsburg in 1880. Before the season ended Moffitt married a Circassian beauty of Milesian extraction. She died last summer, and before the Barnum show concluded its season the tattooed widower was head over heels in love with the fascinating "Spanish bearded lady." Although bearded, she possessed all the coyness of her sex, and Mr. Moffitt was compelled to use all the eloquence which once made him famous as a side-show "blower" to persuade her to accept him. Of late years, the most skillful show swallower in the country is the step father of Miss Leo and gave her away. Miss Leo wanted to have her beard shaved off in honor of the occasion, but Mr. Moffitt, who is of a practical turn of mind, opposed it, on the ground that she might not be able to raise another crop, in which event her value as a "freak" would be totally destroyed.

DINNER OF THE FREAKS. After the ceremony Mr. Geary, "a freak" of fifty years standing, invited twenty of his most intimate acquaintances home to dine with him. Mr. Geary's present wife is professionally known as "Mlle. Catherine," a skeleton woman. When in showing condition she weighs seventy pounds, and as her husband graphically expressed it, "there isn't enough meat on her to feed a Scotch terrier." Now, however, Mlle. Catherine, what Mrs. Geary is pleased to call as "fat as butter," weighs ninety pounds. In response to a question about matrimonial alliances of well-known "freaks" Mr. Geary said: "Well, the most of 'em marry opposites. I only know one case in which a fat man married a fat woman. There's Hannah and John Bittersby. She's the fattest woman that ever showed through this country; weighs somewhat like 600 pounds, and keeps gaining flesh right straight along. John and Mary Powers travel as brother and sister, but he got so lean that he couldn't walk, and he had to give up traveling. They live here in Frankford. He runs a blacksmith-shop and peddles hose medicine. He has to be trundled about in a hand cart. Well, I guess he won't weigh more than sixty pounds. You heard about that skeleton on Sprague, who married a beauty out of Bunell's woman show, didn't you? Well, that man has got a two-hundred pound wife and half a dozen children down in Massachusetts. By the way, the Battersbys have a mighty handsome daughter. Yes, a young woman. No, neither fat nor lean. There's a fat girl at Bunell's that is married to an animal keeper. John and Mary Powers travel as brother and sister, but they are man and wife. That's the only fat couple I know of. For a long time a fat man, who married an Albino, and John B. Doris engaged a fat woman that was married to a canvasman. Fat little Grant is married to a lean ventriloquist."

ROCKING CHAIRS OF DREAMS. Here Mr. Geary paused to light his pipe. Then he resumed his interesting narrative. "There's Colonel Graham, the giant you know; he got struck on the knee. She's the freak that married General Whisman, a dwarf, who is ugly enough to scare milk. The Chinese giant once told me he had half a dozen wives at home, but I think he was pulling my leg. That ugly little Chinese dwarf who was with the Barnum show last season was on the first all the time. He was a wife and five children at home, but he is engaged to be married to a sleek looking white woman as you ever saw. He met her in Baltimore, and she followed the show for a month. Why you'd be astonished to know the number of women that fall in love with 'freaks.' The historian said this in a way calculated to convey the impression that innumerable fair ones had flocked upon him during his long and eventful career. The sword-swallower paused to make the point more effective. On resuming he said: "Half a dozen of them Cape Town niggers that Firini took to London and called 'Julius' are now married to English women. Fanny Burdette, one of the smallest women in the country, is the wife of big Bill Bristol, a side-show blower. She is now in Boston. Of course you know Tom Thumb married Minnie Warren. Major Little Finger and wife, both little folks, traveled with O'Brien's circus last year. Little Commodore Nutt is married to a dwarf, but he thinks every big woman on the road is struck on him."

HAPPY MATRIMONY. "Madame Heene, the bearded woman married Dr. Clark, the lecturer, shaved her beard off and let the show business. Madam Myers, the best bearded woman in the business, married a side-show ticket-taker, and lives somewhere near Pittsburg. Madam Lyons, of Syracuse, was married to a showman. She travels with her daughter who does the Circassian girl business. Annie Jones, another bearded woman, has two of the nicest children you ever saw. Oh, I forgot about Eugene Feratlo, a skeleton, who married a Circassian girl, Ida Woodward, the original tattooed woman, married the man who painted her. Why, certainly they are all painted. Barnum's india-rubber man, that guy who can pull his skin around, let it snap back like gum, has a wife and eight children in Germany. Osmond, the hairy man, married the large-handed lady. She died, and he liked the family so well that he married her mother, who is a snake-charmer. Lurline, the water-queen, ain't exactly a freak, but she's in the business. Her right name is Samie Swan, and she came out as a club-winger. She married a nobleman in London, and lives in bang-up style."

Oh, the Albinos and the Circassians and gals with great heads of hair are so numerous that no one pays any attention to their marriages. Talking about funny things, there's that freak, the double-headed girl—Millie Christine, I mean. Well, I'll bet that more than a dozen of 'em have offered to marry her, but she knows it and won't take 'em up. Why, one cranky Dutchman followed that double-headed girl from Berlin to St. Petersburg, and sent her an offer of marriage every day. I guess that fellow dropped about $2,000 traveling around after that double-headed gal."

As the reporter started to the door Mr. Geary said: "Gee up, again in the spring and see the old woman after she gets some of the flesh off her," an invitation to which the female skeleton at his side kindly added her voice.

"WOULD HAVE IT IF IT COST $50."

SPRINGFIELD, Robertson County, Tenn. November 27th, 1880. Dr. J. BRADFIELD: Sir: My daughter has been suffering for many years with that dreadful affliction known as "Female Disease," which has cost me many dollars, and, notwithstanding I had the best medical attendance, could not find relief. I have used many other kinds of medicines without any effect. I had just about given her up, was out of heart, but happened in the store of W. W. Eckler several weeks since and he, knowing of my daughter's affliction, persuaded me to buy a bottle of your "FEMALE REGULATOR." She began to improve at once. I was so delighted with its effects that I bought several more bottles. The price—$1.50 per bottle—seemed to be very high at first, but now I think it the cheapest preparation on the globe; and, knowing what I do about it, if to-day one of my family was suffering with that awful disease, I would have it if it cost $50 a bottle; for I can truthfully say it has cured my daughter sound and well, and my wife and self do most heartily recommend your "FEMALE REGULATOR" to be just what it is recommended to be. Respectfully, H. D. FRATHERSTON.

Crops in some of the southwestern counties are reported as backward. The scarcity of hands is one of the main causes. Improved machinery will furnish the way out of this slough.

NEW YORK is to rejoice in another bucket-shop of large pretensions; and there will be mer in the south foolish enough to enter in, and come out with the wisdom born of experience.

MR. P. J. SHERIDAN, who assumed the role of bogus priest in the Irish invincibles, has been demanded by the British government, and professes to be glad of the notoriety it will afford him. This will afford Mr. Robinson another chance to introduce a preamble and suitable resolutions in the house.

MADISON county has many good farmers, and one of the best among them is Mr. Kirk, whose experience is worthy of study the state over. He knows how to keep his land fertile; appreciates the music of a hog's grunt, and is never under the necessity of going to town for what he can raise at home.

MR. PEIRCE'S new rule does not work well and unless it does there is poor chance for the Philadelphia pill vendors and iron monopolists to secure their coveted tariff legislation. The apathy shown by many republicans, in not voting on the motion to adjourn, is notable, and indicates that some of them see the writing on the wall.

DEFALCATION seems to be epidemic. From every side come reports of treasurers short in their accounts, bank cashiers who dabble in stocks, and officers who could not say no to their campaign strikers. The next most remarkable epidemic is the discontent of penitentiary convicts. These distinguished members of society are making themselves felt in New York and Massachusetts; in Missouri they are showing themselves to be adepts with a saw, while in Arkansas they make short work of the guards. It seems to be but a step from high to low.

POLITICAL REFORM OUT WEST. A good many people of Colorado and Minnesota, and of all the other states for that matter, are beginning to think that they are politically disgraced unless they can either drive the republicans out of their entrenchments, or secure elections of United States senators by direct vote. To their sorrow and disgust they fully see that the average republican legislature is always subject to the worst man or men of the state, especially if the chief beneficiary happens to be a millionaire. A millionaire who is ready to open his barrels is a necessary part of the new but not improved method of electing senators. Given the open barrel there are always enough republican politicians and members ever-ready to consummate the work. This state of things is leading up to a movement in several of the states against the present method of electing United States senators. Election by the people is the remedy. This involves of course new dangers for the ballot-box, but if the people cannot be trusted to do right and to guard their rights at the source of all political power, then indeed are we in a bad way. Perhaps after all the best remedy consists in a thorough defeat of the party that has fostered monopolies until its own creations have in turn produced men who buy its gifts and control its course. It is now afflicted with millionaires as the natural result of early improvidence. The monopolies have blossomed into millionaires, and out west these millionaires want all there is in sight, whether it be political or monetary plunder. The millionaires are now stronger than the party, and they cannot be separated. They should never be divided. They should all be buried in one grave, and then we will have an end of the election of men to high office or to any office on account of the length and weight of their purses.

PLAIN FACTS ABOUT IRON. The senate bill is a good compromise bill for the time being. It is a start in the work of tariff reform, and altogether a better one than we had reason to expect at the hands of a republican senate. It is indeed so reasonable as a beginning of the great work that a great outcry from the protection camp is going up against it. This outcry when traced to its source comes almost wholly from Pennsylvania, and even in that state no one is tearing his hair over the matter except the Bessemer ring. The Pennsylvania crowd like the bill well enough except the parts of it that relate to steel rails and pig iron. Let us see what the naked facts are in relation to these articles.

The pig iron brought into the country cost, duty added, $25.75 a ton. About a half a million tons were imported. The duty was $7 a ton. This iron under the senate bill would cost in this country $25.25 a ton, the duty being $6.50 a ton. The best of our own iron is selling and was selling last year at $22 a ton. The duty of $6.50 a ton would therefore be just as prohibitory as the old duty of $7 a ton. The senate increased the duty on charcoal iron from $7 to $9.50. These are the naked facts, and an honest man with a microscope could not discover any substantial ground for opposition on the part of producers to the senate bill. If any complaints should be heard to these provisions of the senate bill, it should be those of the consumers; but in this campaign of the lobby the scattering voices of the people who buy iron are scarcely heard and never heeded.

Take again steel rails. The facts are plain and simple. Last year about 200,000 tons of steel rails were imported. They cost $34 a ton in the foreign market. Add the senate duty to this sum, and we find that foreign rails would cost here $49 a ton. Our own mills are ready to take orders at $38 to $40 a ton, and are making money at these rates. Mr. Hewitt declares that a duty of $14 a ton would be protection enough. It affords a protective margin of about $10 a ton; this ought to satisfy any man or any state; and so it does, excepting of course the Bessemer monopolists, who are lying in wait for another opportunity to squeeze the railroads until they can again make 200 per cent a year on the capital employed.

The senate duties on both pig-iron and steel rails are not revenue items at all. They will not lead to any increase in our exports. They are both strictly prohibitive. But they help the consumers in this, that the monopolists cannot under their operation carry prices beyond a certain limit. The Bessemer ring cannot again demand $60 a ton for their rails. They would practically be limited to a range of prices not exceeding $50 a ton. And so with pig-iron. This is where the shoe pinches. The senate places a limit upon future profits and extortions of the monopolists. It lowers the limit, and to the extent of the concessions to the people it is a good measure. It is the only tariff bill before congress that is not wholly in the interest of the allied monopolists.

CARP AND CARP CULTURE. The extraordinary interest taken in carp culture in this country—especially in the south—during the past two or three years has already been made the subject of frequent notice in these columns. There are no available statistics at hand, but our opinion is that Georgia has taken the lead in the development of this industry. At any rate, the propagation of carp is attracting sufficient attention in Georgia to warrant the United States fish commissioner in sending a distributing agent to Atlanta, from which point young carp will be dispatched to all portions of the south.

We have before us a pamphlet on "Carp and Carp Culture," written by Milton P. Peirce, of the Pennsylvania state board of agriculture, which contains a good deal of information in regard to the raising of carp and the construction of carp ponds, with pictorial designs for the latter.

It is thought that the carp was originally introduced into Europe from Central Asia many centuries ago. In Austria, where the propagation of this fish has been carried to the greatest perfection, carp culture can be traced as far back as 127, and in that country are to be found the most extensive carp establishments in Europe, the artificial ponds of the Austrian princes of Schwarzenberg covering an area of no less than twenty thousand acres. There are also large establishments in Germany and France.

There are three varieties of carp—the scale carp, the mirror carp, and the leather carp. Mr. Peirce has in his own ponds each of the so-called different varieties, but he says he can detect no material difference in shape. When the varieties are bred separately their progeny is apt to develop into each of the three types. Each of the three varieties has been imported into the United States and have been bred separately for four years. Professor Baird, the commissioner, says that both the scale and mirror varieties are unmistakably developing into the leather carp, which is said to be the best variety.

When all conditions are favorable, the growth of the carp is almost incredible. The age of the oldest carp ever seen by Mr. Peirce was three and one-half years, and they weighed fourteen pounds each. They were of the leather variety, and had never received a particle of artificial food, but had an ample pond, rich in natural food. The growth of carp depends upon certain conditions, but Mr. Peirce says the best results are attained in small ponds of warm water, which, of course, are more rich in the supply of natural food than large, deep, cold bodies of water.

Mr. Peirce says that the overstocking of ponds would be attended with the same results as the overstocking of pastures with cattle. The carp thrive best in warm ponds with muddy bottoms, and their growth will vary from year to year in the same waters, according as a season is a cold or a warm one—this having much to do with the food supply. Mr. Peirce says it has been practically demonstrated that the waters of this country are far richer in fish food than those of Europe.

In some of the preserves of Austria there are carp known to be one hundred and fifty years old. There is an authentic record of one carp that weighed ninety pounds, and numerous records of fish of this variety weighing from thirty-five to seventy-five pounds. In the latitude of New England, carp gain two pounds annually under favorable conditions, but this rate of growth is materially increased in the warm southern waters.

Many pages of Mr. Peirce's monograph are taken up with the description and details of pond-making, embracing information of such a nature as to make the pamphlet indispensable to those engaged in carp culture. He warns all who contemplate going into this business against endeavoring to learn by their own experience, for the mass will find life too short to acquire such a knowledge of it as can be attained in a short time by availing themselves of the experience of others. Those who have means and leisure to make experiments may do so, but those who go in for profits cannot afford to amuse themselves. Even as matters stand, Mr. Peirce believes there will be a vast amount of misdirected carp culture in this country for several years to come, and an immense aggregate of waste of time and money in consequence.

SENATOR BARROW sends us a photograph of the proposed new capitol building of Texas, now in course of construction. It is a magnificent pile, as large and as imposing as the capitol at Washington, and is calculated to make an average Georgian haul in his horse when he reflects upon the style and size of the building that the Progressives will give to Georgia. The capitol will cost from three to five millions, while the building for the Hon. Polk Pease, proposed for Georgia will cost about seven dollars and a half.

The signal service bureau of the present day, with all its appliances, is not much in advance of one that was in operation nearly three thousand years ago. What does Ecclesiastes say? "The wind goeth toward the south and turneth about into the north; it whirleth about continually; and the wind returneth again according to his circuit." Further than this, even the men with brass instruments know not; and we are led to believe that their profession is vanity.

BILL ABE is right in vindicting the pastoral regions from the charge of carrying concealed weapons. It is not the young men in the country who are armed, but the young men in the cities, towns, and villages, and who are at the bottom of the whole business. Public sentiment is waiting for a judge with the nerve of Hopkins, who will slap the pistol-toters in jail.

JAY HUBBELL, gayly acknowledges that he sent ten thousand dollars into Virginia last fall as a bribe. The probability is that if Hubbell would print his confessions in a book, the stalwart reformers and the star-route sympathizers would make him up and run him for president.

THEODORE PARKER said he was glad to hear that George Washington Swore, because it showed he was a man. If this is the test, we have a good many men in this country just now. At the same time, these philosophers should not be taken too literally.

MR. TALMAGE'S remarks about the ear are incomplete; but it is supposed that he omitted to mention the republican ear of regard for the feeling of the donkeys. The donkeys, it will be remembered, are innocent of the great transgression.

JUNCO has gained seven inches in height since he came to this country. So Barnum says, and as Barnum is a highly moral republican showman, no one would presume to doubt one of his smallest advertisements.

BESIDES being engaged in the work of driving honest men out of the navy, it is charged that Mr. Billy Chandler has disgraced the privileges of a cabinet officer by lobbying on the floor of congress.

THERE are few journalists in the country who have not discerned that the only method of tending and disorganizing a stalwart republican is to pretend to support him honestly.

"MARK!" It is very easy to be an actress. But two things are necessary. You must be nineteen next June, and know how to sob heartily on the stage.

MR. BILLY CHANDLER'S policy is to drive all honest men out of the navy on the ground that they are serving British interests.

THE probability is that HAZEN would the signal service bureau enlarged to suit he may become a cabinet officer.

In the drawing room he is a hell fellow, but when out with his boys, he is a hell fellow, and he is perfectly at home in whatever company he may be thrown. He is but thirty-two years old, and is eminently a self-made man. His education was limited, but he has made excellent use of what he knows."

MACADAR'S MARRIAGE.

The cable has brought news that General MacAdar had been sent through the English and American ministers in Paris to the Italian authorities, a formal demand that he was "Number One" of the Phoenix park conspiracy. Prior to his marriage to Mrs. Crickard of St. Louis, in 1874, General MacAdar entered into the following marriage contract, recited in the office of the recorder of deeds, that of record:

About two weeks there will be five bar rooms adjoining on Decatur street, commencing at the corner of the city.

Mr. J. S. Groves, late of the Bridal Veil society association, has been appointed a store keeper and ganger.

The attacks of the postoffice did not observe Washington's birthday. They preferred to take a half day off on a day of no account.

A negro woman in Passville has been mysteriously shot for several days, and the other women in the locality say she is "cured."

The regular monthly meeting of the railroad commissioners will be held to-day.

A prominent young business man of Atlanta will leave in a few days for Kentucky, and when he returns Kentucky will be one less and Georgia one greater in population to-day.

A NEW CEMETERY.—A new cemetery for Atlanta will soon be a necessity. The older portions of the city are crowded, and the new portions are not yet opened.

The addition of an acre taken up, in the course of a year probably every lot will be sold. It has been suggested that a cemetery be opened on the lot between the city and the railroad.

THE RUDD MURDERERS.

THEY START BACK TO WALKER COUNTY FOR TRIAL.

How They Left the City and What They Had to Say.—Barks Changes His Tune and Denies That He Was Connected with the Murder of a Girl.

William Barks and George Cunningham, the murderers of old man Rudd in Walker county, were yesterday delivered to the sheriff of Walker county to be carried to Lafayette for trial.

There was no notice before yesterday that the men would be taken from the city, and the sheriff of Walker county, who had been waiting for them, was surprised.

The sheriff of Walker county received a dispatch from the sheriff of Walker county that he was on his way here to take charge of the prisoners.

When he arrived he had an order from Judge Brannan for the men to be delivered and accordingly they were turned over by Sheriff Perkins.

The two men were handcuffed together and taken to the jail. They were taken to the jail in a hack, and the sheriff of Walker county was with them.

GRAND CONCERT.
Last night Miss Laura Moor, of this city, a new lyric candidate for public favor, appeared in grand concert at DeGue's opera house, supported by some excellent local talent, and also an orchestra. While the audience was a highly intelligent one it was not so large as has been usual. The following program was rendered:
Part I—L. Overture, Staudella, Flotow—Orchestra.
2. Song, "The Heart Bowed Down," Belle—Mr.
Ryan.
3. Air and Variation, (Piano and Violin), Pechnick—Professor Freyer and Miss Schultze.
4. Song, "Una Voce Foa," Rosini—Miss
Schultze.
5. Piano Solo, "Concert Paraphrase," Liszt—Miss
Schultze.
Part II—Grand selection, "Masco," Andran—Orchestra.
2. Song, "The Better Land," Cowen—Mrs. Daly.
3. Seventh air and variation, piano and violin.
Deberton—Professor Freyer and Miss Schultze.
4. Song, "The Message," Blumenthal—Miss Moor.
Under the leadership of Mr. A. J. Wynn, the orchestra gave a good rendition of their selections.
Miss Von der Hoya Schultze, pianist, gave great satisfaction in the rendition of her solo, as well as in the pieces in which she was accompanied by Professor Freyer. It was a regret that Mrs. Daly's name was down for only one song, after hearing her sing "The Better Land." As Mr. Stephen Ryan, bass, is an amateur and not a professional, he will scarcely be able to do justice to his part. He appeared on the stage and with a splendid voice, he is not true to himself in not cultivating his voice more. Miss Laura Moor, after preparation in good schools, appears before the public professionally. It was pleasant to hear her sing, her low notes being very good and sweet.
She has a good stage presence, is graceful and cool.
She is just entering her profession and a future is before her. The lyric artists of the world did not establish their reputation in a season.
It requires study, practice and methods.
The unusual forcing of high notes, neglect of the science and art of breathing to be done away with.
Defects in the pronunciation of vowels and the articulation of consonants, their dramatic treatment. In short, time, patience and study enabled them to arrive at a correct understanding or conception of a song, and gave them a good style in singing. A natural before Miss Moor. Why should she not make it a successful one? The concert, in its entirety, was a pleasant one.
